GOOD HABITS MAKE LIFE LONGER.

Celebrates His Ninety-second Anniversary.—Oldest Odd Fellow in United States.

De Wet, Famous Odd Leader, Dies
Himself in Defense of His Country.

Two days ago, at 11 P.M., in the home of his son, in New York City, died the world's oldest surviving member of the Odd Fellows, Mr. William Powell De Wet, Lexington, N.Y. The venerable old man died peacefully in his sleep at his home. He was 92 years old.

Up to the past few months he had been active in his 92nd year, and his memory was remarkable. The taste of tobacco is not native to Mr. De Wet, and never has he used it as a form of recreation; his memory is a stimulant. His desire is to live all parts of life temperately, both as well as play, and get along as well as possible.

The response was a O. H. P. (old) and a hearty "Amen." At a time when the country is in a terrible state of depression, the people of the province gets the best of the best.

According to reports thirteen lodges were established during the year. Two were consolidated. The total number in the State is now 17, with a membership of 13,791. About fifteen hundred new members were admitted during the year, but a dozen members were lost by death, suspension, etc., leaving a net gain of 179.

Reports show that the lodges own real estate to the value of $85,740; cash, $40,000; stocks and bonds, $41,750; and other property, bringing the total to $230,491. The value of the Python Home at Lexington is placed at $75,000. There are now at the Home two widows and thirty-one children. One child died during the year, and one of the widow inmates married while on a visit to Oklahoma. The total cost of maintaining the inmates for the past year was $7,751, or $17.50 for each.

TESTING STRENGTH OF BRAIN

Simple Means by Which One May Determine on Which Side of Boundary He Is.

The first thing that struck Columbus when he landed in America was the absence of real estate, neither former lots, country places nor houses. Calling a likely looking tree he said, "Have you a dead tree?" "Indeed we have not," replied an Indian.

"How old do you say it is?" asked Columbus. "Even as old as I am," said the Indian. "Even as old as I am?" Columbus said, "I am 80 years old." "I am 80 years old," said the Indian. "I am 80 years old?" Columbus said again. "Indeed we Indians are as we are as we are."

STRUCK HIS FINAL BALANCE

Old Bookkeeper Ended His Work In Company with the Beloved Leaders.

In silence he walked up and down the man office where the click, click of the typewriters almost made him dizzy; but every head bobbed in front of his work as passed with a pleasant smile or friendly nod.

He had taken leave of the beloved volumes over which he had pored days, months, years—yes, more than the quarter of a century; they were his comrades, his inspiration, his soul. Innumerate things occasionally became a sort of major part of his being, but it was not so brutal to eliminate them from the writer. He was of the past, but the volumes must be handed down to the present—the future. Silently he expressed the huge worn covers; with unuttered words, he said, "I am here as if I were human and had lost all of my grip." He leaned forward and laid his tired head, with its thin gray locks, on one of the open books and with one emaciated, bloodless hand clasped the cover of another. He closed his eyes, which glowed a sight like the soft south of the wind through some deserted garden.

The noise in the main office had ceased; the typewriter girls had gone one by one; the men had taken their departure. The man who swept and cleaned the lights was making a hasty tour of the different offices and open doors of the aged accountants' room. It was nothing unusual to see him at his desk at the late hour.

"Hello there, Uncle! Still at work?"

The white head never moved from the table. There was an ominous silence. Awestruck, the attendant moved closer to the desk and gently shook his shoulder. "The old man was cold and rigid. He had summed up earthly accounts.—The bookkeeper."

RADICAL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

Insurance Man Firmly Convined One Practical Joke Has Seen the Error of His Ways.

"Oh, yes, I had a good time camping out this summer," said the lissome, well-dressed man, "but just before I left home I found a horse. There were a hundred campers of whom I went and among them were several love-sick young men. It got to be a bad place for one of them to take a canoe and paddle away and meet it and play about him. So I took the horse and had to turn out and wait for him. After this game had been played three or four times I got tired of it. I was routed out one morning at daylight to help search for a dudewhile the young fellows had a love of a red-haired girl in camp. This horse had drifted ashore bottom up."

"While some went to dragging the lake, I took a walk in the woods along the shore, and in the course of half an hour I found my man. He wasn't drowning. He wasn't even wet. He was smoking a cigarette and feeling a hero." And what happened?" was asked as the narrator paused.

"I effected a cure. It will be years and years before that same man plays the thoroughly. It may never be. I took him by the collar and jerked him to his feet and rammed the cigarette down his throat, and then I cracked his heels in the air and toyed with him until my knee and sparked him 20 minutes straight. He struggled and yelled, of course, but it was no use. When I had finished him he sneaked up to camp and packed up and disappeared. From that day he left camp, he's right side up, and not a young man was missing on the lake or a young woman lost in the woods to cause the rest of us to miss our regular meals."

Half a Century of Oil.

Fifty years ago, toward the end of August, 1859, Edwin L. Drake, the oil creek man, where Titusville, Pa., now flourishes. This was the beginning of the industry which has reached such stupendous proportions. Steps have been taken by the citizens of the oil fields to mark the semi-centennial of an event the importance of which is not second to any in the economic history of the United States. Fifteen years of petroleum have wrought revolution, first in artificial illumination throughout the great part of the world, while in the enormous growth of the automobile industry another direct result of Drake's drilling is observable. Oil fuel for ships, locomotives and stationary engines is still in its infancy. So far as by-products of petroleum are concerned, they are as varied and as valuable as the by-products of coal.

"Art Neither Teacher Nor Preacher."

Art is not a sermon, and the artist is not a preacher. Art accomplishes by indirection. The beautiful refines. The perfect in art suggests the perfect in conduct. Art is not the means without intention, the lesson of proportion in life. The bird in his song has no moral purpose, and yet the influence is humanizing. The beautiful in nature acts through appreciation and sympathy. It does not move the other down. It is beautiful without regard to you. Roses would be unbearable if in their red and perfumed hearts were not roses to the effect that bears eat bad boys and that honesty is the best policy.—Lingersoll.

Humerous Anecdote Concerning Precious Stone Child Reserved by Popular Comedian.

N. C. Wray, the comedian, was talking in New York about the weird 55 horsepower motor car, with his drawing room nearly 12 feet square, in which he would tour Europe with his wife, Goodwin.

"We have a hotel," said Mr. Goodwin, "the car will get a comfortable accommodation for sleeping, bathing and reading. We'll have a little room for a maid, and a small room for a cook. Find a maid, and get a cook, and we'll be off."

"What do you mean?" asked Mr. Wray.

"Well, you know we're going to Europe."

Shatters All Two-Year-Old Trot Records.

The most marvelous performance ever witnessed on any trotting track in the world was seen at Lexington Wednesday afternoon, when in the second heat of the two-year-old division of the Futurity, Native Belle, owned jointly by Murphy of Poughkeepsie, and Thompson, of New York, broke by almost five seconds the race record for two-year-olds. It was known, after her race at Columbus last week, that Native Belle was exceedingly fast, but the extent of her ability was not even imagined. Her mile in 2:07½ is phenomenal.

At a meeting of the Winchester City Council the ordinance calling for a vote on the sewer question was repealed and a new one passed changing the clause specifying the rate of interest from 4 per cent. to 4½ per cent. and also that $5,500 instead of $5,000 be placed in the sinking fund each year. This was done at the request of the Commercial Club, which has investigated the matter thoroughly and found that it was almost impossible to sell the bonds at 4 per cent.

RELIGIOUS.

Rev. Carey Morgan, of Paris, will begin a meeting at the Christian Church in our city on Monday evening, Oct. 25. He is a good preacher, and his coming will be a blessing to this community.

On Thursday the 125 anniversary of Pisgah Presbyterian Church in Woodford county was celebrated. About 800 people were present. Rev. Rout, a former pastor, had been in continuous service for 38 years. The membership is so. R. B. Crooks, of our country, attended the celebration.

On Friday night of this week there will be service at the Presbyterian church. This service is preparatory to communion. At the close of the service there will be an opportunity for those who desire to unite with the church by letter or confession of faith. On Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered, and in the evening at 7 o'clock the pastor will preach the fourth sermon on "The Church of the Book of Revelation." A hearty welcome is extended to all who wish to attend these services.

The evangelistic meeting which continued for two weeks on Monday night last, and the last service was one of the best. The effort out forth was a success in awakening the membership, bringing the people nearer to God and starting some on the right way—the way of salvation. With the exception of last Sabbath night the attendance was large, and that exception was due to bad weather. The plain gospel preaching was searching, making men realize that trusting in the silly generalization: "O, I'm all right," will not save their souls. Sin was made to appear as sin, the wages of sin is death, and the only way of escape is by trusting and serving Christ, the only Savior. The singing was that of one who knew his business. He sang the gospel for the purpose of bringing souls to Christ. Throughout the meetings were quiet, intense, effective. Tonight the evangelists begin another meeting in Evansville, Ind.

The Annual Convention of the Kentucky Sunday School Association will be held in Owensboro October 22-24, 1909. The program is extensive and interesting. The Departmental Conferences are quite a leading feature, and very instructive to the County Superintendents of these departments, as they will be conducted by workers of national repute. Every problem and perplexity that confronts the Sunday School worker will be well discussed. Every School is entitled to one delegate for each 100 enrollment. Each county is entitled to ten delegates at large. All delegates will receive free lodging and breakfast. The usual cut rates on the railroads. I sincerely hope that Montgomery will send several delegates. Superintendents of Sunday Schools will please select their delegates and report to me Sunday evening, October 17, so that I may send the names to the committee on entertainment at Owensboro.

TO BE REMOVED.

Headquarters of Burley Tobacco Society to go to Lexington.

(Winchester Democrat.)

That the removal of Burley headquarters from this city to Lexington is a great blow to Winchester must be admitted by all; and that it is a great blow to the interests of the Burley Society is equally plain. The growers in the counties of Clark, Bourbon, Montgomery and Bath are not unmoved with the Society since it has become a one-man concern.

If the headquarters had been removed to some other county whose tobacco growers had entered the pool almost unanimously, there would have been more reason for it, but Lexington is the enemy's country as much so as Louisville or Cincinnati. Lexington people and Lexington papers have extolled the merits of the loose leaf warehouses and have declared that they are the salvation of the grower.

The success of these houses mean the downfall of the pool. Besides this the removal is the result of the basest ingratitude. Winchester received the pulling in of the pool with open arms. The pool had no money and Winchester put up thousands of dollars, a warehouse, offices and other things were provided free.

The truth is the Burley Committee is no longer a deliberative body but is dominated by the iron will and master spirit of President LeBus.

Three-Cent Fares Unless Company Fails to Make Money.

At Cleveland, Ohio, an absolute settlement of the local street railway situation which has been bitterly agitated for eight years, is near.

The basis of the strife has been Mayor Tom L. Johnson's contention for three-cent fares. The proposed settlement will be upon this rate of fare.

It is agreed that the city shall give the Cleveland Railway Company, owner of the local lines, a twenty-five-year franchise, revokable at any time my default of the contract is violated.

The city reserves the right to purchase the lines at any time municipal ownership is lawful, also to name a purchaser of the after eight years.

The initial rate of fare is three cents with a one cent for a transfer. Both the railway company have to let Judge Robert W. J. of the United States Court, the value of the railroad and the maximum rate to be agreed that at no time rate of fare be greater than the company may charge more than 6 per cent of the property, or good service.

Judge Taylor further provides that the rates and of fare four cents fare for the regular ticket, a tickets for twenty cents. This cent extra for both proposition has been agreed to by the city and company.

Appeal Denied Banker.

John R. Walsh, aged 72, convicted of misapplication of the funds of the Chicago National Bank, must serve five years' imprisonment imposed by the trial jury unless the Supreme Court upsets the verdict by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

His Counsel laid the greatest stress on what they alleged was a lack of criminal intent on the part of the convicted banker, newspaper publisher and railroad owner in using the funds of the bank in what he considered a legitimate manner.

Counsel have thirty days in which to file application for a re-hearing by the Court of Appeals, Meanwhile he will be at liberty

The rise and fall of Walsh form an interesting chapter in the history of Americans who have risen from obscurity to power.

The three Walsh banks—the Chicago National, the Eagle Trust Company and the Peoples Savings Bank—were closed Jan. 1. Walsh not only owned the institutions and the Chicago residence, but owned nearly all the stock of 15 railroads.

All of these companies were bankrupt, or very little, when secured by Walsh little or nothing. He formed corporations to buy these comp'ys from himself. In this way secured for nothing stocks amounting to the face value of $400,000.

To secure funds Walsh resorted to the firms of banks. In investigating charges it is alleged that he used forged names signed with names of clerks who were to assist in the matter. That's nothing on his books to start. Walsh had secured the I.

For two years past ignored the demands of Controller of the Currency to place his banks upon a foundation, and when the crisis it was discovered that about one-half of the securities held by Walsh properties, i.e., $25,000,000 properties, $1,000,000 were represented by enterprises.
